LIFE OF GEN. GAINES. The New York Tribune gives the following sketch of the life of Gen. Gaines; He was born in Culpepper co., Virginia March 20, 1777, and was named after his great uncle Edmund Pendloton, long presiding Judge of the Virginia Court of Appeals. His Judge of the lamporarily in the Revolutionaw War, and toward its close removed to the north-west corner of North Carolina, and afperwards to East Tennessee, where the son was early engaged in Indian warfare, being chosen a lieutenant at the age of eighteen. His educational advantages were very moderate, and he was engaged in the study of the law, when in 1799 he obtained an ensign's commission in the army. In 1804 he was apcommission Military Collector for the District of Mobile, then mainly in possession of the Mobile, and in 1806 he was actively enga-stroyed. ord in the Government measures of resistance o Aaron Burr's projects, personally commanding at Burr's arrest. About this time he was made a captain, and soon after—seeing no remaining prospect of active service—obtained last week. a furlough, and commenced the practice of the aw in Mississippi Territory, now Alabama. "Just as he was getting into practice the war of 1812 was declared, and he promptly resumed his position in the army. He was in Wilkinson's blundering expedition of 1813, and commanded the 25th infantry at the battle of Chrysler's Felds, November 11th, won distinction in the fight, and covered the retreat of our army with a gallantry and success which elicited general admiration. He was made a Brigadier General, March 9, 1814, and commanded at Sackett's Harbor until August, reaching Fort Erie and taking command there on the 5th. The gallant and successful defence of Gen. Gaines of that post, forms one of the most brilliant chapters of our military annals. At length, having been severely wounded by a shell, he resigned the command to Gen. Ripley, and crossed to Buffalo. He hid not recover in time to engage in the farther prosecution of the war, which closed the next pring, but he received the thanks of Congress, if the army in 1821, when he was retained as of the city. Brigadier, and the western division assigned im. He was a candidate for Major General 1818, but Mr. Adams decided that General facomb's claim was stronger. Gen. Gaines e called out a liberal allowance of southwesern militia, without awaiting orders from transferred to the eastern division, with eventy-two years old, he seemed in good gehim adieu at Washington, that he was so near his long home. He was a man of extreme implicity of character, and the most unqueshoned integrity."

Comfort for ultra whigery !- Nay, if General Taylor shall abide by his pledges upon the subject of the veto, and Executive interference with Congress, we may expect to see even him co-operating with the democratic party in carrying out its measures and policy.

And if the people, in whom is supreme power over the question, shall think proper to send a democratic House of Representatives. you will certainly see the Old Hero co-operating with a democratic Congress in carrying out its measures and policy with the same energy and zeal as we expect to see a democratic Senate co-operating with him in carrying out the democratic practice of removals and appointments.—National Whig.

> Amusing Death.-We learn that several negroes were vesterday engaged in the amusement of "butting" over cotton bales, at the Hydraulic Cotton Press. One of them, a man named William, belonging to Mr. George W. Dunham, of Riceboro', Liberty county, for a very small wager, undertook to "butt' over a square bale of cotton. He took a running start of some ten yards, and struck the cotton bale with considerable force with his head. He won the wager, but the effort cost him his life-the sudden jar broke his neck, and he died instantly. The Coroner facts .- Savannah Georgian.

Gen. Taylor and Jefferson Davis .- Queer things happen in this world. A few years ago, TO NEW YORKyoung man on the banks of the Southern Mississippi, eloped with the daughter of an old planter, as the father would not consent to the marriage. Time rolled on; the daughter died; and the father and widowed husband met on the bloody but victorious field of Buena Vista. On that terrible day, amid scenes of carnage and valor, the gallant young hero sustained well and nobly the gallantry of his countrymen, and the old here extending to him his hand for the first time since the marriage of his daughter, said-" Sir, my daughter was a better judge of character than I am. Here is my hand."

Two years have passed away. A President is to be inaugurated. The son-in-law, now a member of the U.S. Senate, is appointed chairman of a committee to wait upon the President and inform him of his election. Again the father and son-in-law meet. That was a proud day for Jefferson Davis. It was his hour of victory. We would rather have been Davis than Taylor. The sweet whisone" must have been with him there. Mississippian.

TOPSAIL SOUND, N. C. JUNE 11, 1849.

THIS IS TO CERTIFY that about the middle of January, 1847. I was attacked with a severe pain in my face and jaws, and my face was swollen for some five or six weeks, with distressing pain all that time. I now applied to a physician, hoping to be benefited. He prescribed for me. My teeth and jaws were at this time in a state of ulceration ; continued under his treatment for some two or three months. By this time my jaw-bone was in a curious state, from one angle to another, and a discharge of matter in three of four places. About this time I was induced to try Dr. Schonwald. I applied to him accordingly; he thought my case very doubtful-however he undertook my case about the first of June, and in a short time arrested the disease I continued under his treatment for about fifteen months, and by this time he re-Schr Alaric, Prosser, New York, by DeRosset & moved a large portion of the bone. I have since nearly or duite recovered. I feel indubted to Dr. Schonwald, through the blessing of Provisix months, and my general health is rather better

I have thought proper to publish this certificate for the information of those, who may be affected in the same way. When I was under the treatment of other physicians, they could do me no good, and said they could do nothing for me, even before it was in a state of ulceration. I would advise all persons similarly affected to give Dr. Schonwald a call. JAMES M. HOWARD. We, the undersigned, are acquainted with Mr. Howard-have known him during his affliction, and can testify to the truth of his statements. W. WARE, Dentist, MILES COSTIN, H. W. Por, WM. B. JONES, W.
